Mrs. Blaine is busy putting her household in order and will not be ready for some days to see anybody. The historic house has been beautifully decorated. The lower hall woodwork is painted in a glistening ivorie. On the right of the entrance is a reception room lue and pale yellow; the walls are in blue and the draperies at the windows are pale vellow veiled in white lace. Some of the furniture is intique and the walls are covered with rare ngravings. On the left hand is a large room, the walls of which are colored a deep maroo

The High School Laboratory. In the appropriation bill for 1889 and 1890 there was a clause appropriating $40,000 for an addition to the Washington high school. In preparing to make this addition the laboratory in the old building was demolished. After the completion of the addition there was some money left over, and it was decided to use it in connection with a new laboratory. The matter was submitted to Controller Matthews for his viewa. In a letter to the Commissioners today he decided that the surplus can be used provided the fixtures placed in the room are permanent.
